

Custom Cable Management Rack Prices

Article Overview

A custom-made cable management rack typically costs between $500 and $3,000 per rack, depending on complexity, features, and installation requirements.

Price Breakdown

Basic cable management systems such as cable trays, ties, or simple horizontal/vertical managers generally cost $200 to $1,000 per rack . For more advanced rack-mounted cable management systems, including specialized designs, integrated airflow management, or high-density configurations, costs can rise to $1,000 to $3,000 per rack . Individual components also vary: a conventional 1U horizontal cable manager averages $38 per U, while optimized Zero U cable management shelves can cost as little as $21 per unit, saving rack space .

Custom Rack Considerations

Custom racks may include unique dimensions, enhanced security, shock resistance, dust or water proofing, and specialized cooling or power integration. These features can significantly increase the cost, as they require full-service design and fabrication . Working with a custom rack provider often involves CAD design and engineering consultation, which may add to the overall expense.

Installation and Labor

Professional installation ensures proper ventilation, safe electrical connections, and optimal performance. Labor costs typically range from $50 to $200 per hour, with medium-sized data center installations costing $5,000 to $20,000 depending on complexity . DIY installation is possible for simpler setups but may not be suitable for high-density or critical environments.

Summary

- o Basic cable management rack: $200-$1,000
 - o Advanced/custom rack-mounted system: $1,000-$3,000
 - o Individual optimized cable manager (Zero U): ~$21 per unit
 - o Professional installation: $300-$800 for a single rack, or higher for complex setups
- Overall, the total cost depends on the level of customization, rack size, cable management type, and installation requirements, with high-density or enterprise setups potentially exceeding these ranges .
